Art museums and industrial arts are two topics which will engage the major share of the attention of the dele gates, who are conducting an active campaign to improve the taste and judgment of the nation at large in matters pertaining to home and city building. Painting, sculpture, the arts and crafts, and civic art will be the subjects of papers and addresses by the nation's leading exponents of aigher culture.

The first event of a social nature will be a reception at the Corcoran Gallery the evening of May 15, and the garden party at the White House is scheduled for the day following. Other entertainment features probably will be announced later.

Tweive chapters of the federation are in Washington. They are the Corcoran Gallery of Art, American Academy in Rome, American Civic Association, Archeological Institute of America, Arts and Crafts School, League for the Decoration of Public Schools, Public Schools Art Teachers' Association, So-ciety of Washington Artists, Washing-ton Architectural Club, Washington So-ciety of Fine Arts, Washington Chapter ciety of Fine Arts, Washington Chapter of American Institute of Architects, and the Washington Water Color Club.

Although the organization is comparatively new, it has already extended over the entire country, and is exerting a nation-wide influence. Professional and civic bodies, colleges, clubs, and art societies in every State are included in its membership. The officers at present are Robert W.
